

The Anne Ray Fellowship is awarded by the School for Advanced Research (SAR) to a Native scholar with a Master's or PhD in the arts, humanities, or social sciences to work on their own writing or curatorial research project for nine months. This may include research and writing for a future exhibition at an arts or cultural institution. In addition, the fellow will provide mentorship to the two Anne Ray interns working at the Indian Arts Research Center and help guide their intellectual development while facilitating their engagement with other scholars on the SAR campus. The fellowship includes a $40,000 stipend, a campus residence, an office, and an allowance account, and requires residence at SAR from September 1 to May 31.

Applications must include:

- Application form.
- A statement identifying experience and interest in serving as mentor, not to exceed two double-spaced pages.
- An abstract, not to exceed 150 words, describing the purpose, goals, and objectives of the applicant's project on which he or she will work at SAR.
- A proposal, no more than four double-spaced pages in length. The proposal should describe what is to be accomplished during the fellowship year, the status of the applicant's research or progress on the project, and the significance of the work.
- A short bibliography, not to exceed one single-spaced page, including any references cited in the proposal.
- Curriculum vitae, not to exceed four single-spaced pages.
- Three letters of recommendation not to exceed two single-spaced pages in length each, with one letter from a former or current student or supervisee. Letters must be received by November 1. Applicants are responsible for ensuring that references send their letters on time.
- A brief statement of tribal affiliation.

Scholars receiving the Anne Ray Resident Scholar Fellowship will commit a portion of their time to providing mentorship to two full-time interns on a weekly basis; participating in weekly colloquia; providing two public presentations on their research; and participating in the monthly Indian Arts Research Center Speaker Series.

The application deadline is November 1. For application form and submission specifications go to scholars.sarweb.org or contact Scholar Programs at scholar@sarsf.org or (505) 954-7201.
